ABSTRACT

This specialized bibliography is intended to fill a definite student need to the scarcity of literature on this topic. Total entries number about 128 and are limited to materials in English available at the University of Pittsburgh. Two main sections of the bibliography are: 1) Education in Korea, and 2) Korean Studies. Cited in the former are book annotations, journal articles, government documents, pamphlets, research studies, dissertations and reports. Journals and newspapers, and other major bibliographies are listed for general area studies; the entries on Korean culture are arranged by subject: history and geography, general works, politics and economy, and literature. This bibliography has been prepared rather hastily and out of scarcity of the literature (in English) on Korea and its educational system for immediate use in the course. Therefore, the bibliography is limited to materials easily accessible to the student. At a later date we hope to arrange a more comprehensive listing.

The book's call number or place where the material is located is included and the legends are as follows:

ch-------Clearinghouse, IDEP js-------Dr. John Singleton's collection ksk------Compiler's collection
gspia----Graduate School of Public and International Affairs Library

Also included are some annotations borrowed from Professors, Yi-sup Hong and Barnard S. Silberman.

/The/ book displayed the most properly critical attitude among Europeans in their studies on Korea. It was a monumental and unforgettable work in the history of studying Korea. Education was the problem he chiefly dealt with, but he exerted efforts to grasp the situation at large which Korea faced under the Japanese rule, and for this he criticized even the work of missionaries. In all these respects it serves us well as a guide book for those times. --h.

Asiatic Research Center. Bibliography of Korean Studies--A Bibliographical Guide to Korean Publications on Korean Appearing from 1945 to 1958. Seoul: the Center, Koryo University, 1961. RZ 3316 K85

Marcus, Richard, Ed. Korean Studies Guide. Berkeley and Los Angeles: University of California Press, 1954.

An annotated listing of the major works on Korea in Western as well as Oriental languages. Arrangement is by topic and each topic has a short introduction. Also includes chronological tables and historical maps. /Its/ introduction to the bibliography in Korean literature offers the best available summary in English.--s.

/It/ is a milestone in Koreanology. Perhaps its only drawbacks are some erroneous expositions of Oriental books and the inclusion of a few books probably of little use at present for study of Korea. Nevertheless, it is of great value for its comprehensiveness, newness, and handiness.--h.

3. JOURNALS AND NEWSPAPERS

Bank of Korea. Monthly Statistical Review. Seoul: Bank of Korea. Contains valuable statistics on economic growth and development.

Far Eastern Survey. New York: Institute of Pacific Relations. 1932-1961.

A fortnightly review of contemporary Asian affairs. Superseded in 1961 by Asian Survey. Berkeley: Institute of International Affairs, 1961-.

Harvard Journal of Asiatic Studies.

Journal of Asian Studies. Ann Arbor: Association for Asian Studies, (Known as the Far Eastern Quarterly, 1942-1956).

The official quarterly of the Association of Asian Studies. Carries an occasional article on Korea and every issue reviews some books on Korea. Range of topics is wide.

Korea Journal. Seoul: Korean National Commission for Unesco, 1961-. ch

Korean Survery. Washington, D. C.: Korean Research and Information Office, 1952-.

A more or less official Korean government publication reflecting the Korean government's view on current events. Superseded in April, 1961 by Korean Report.

Pacific Affairs. New York: Institute of Pacific Relations, 1928-.
This quarterly's emphasis is on modern and contemporary affairs and carries an occasional article on Korea.

T'oung Pao.

Transactions of the Korea Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society. Seoul: The Society, 1900-1941, 1948-.
The longest continually published journal concerning Korea. Its articles are not often of professional quality.

The Korea Times. Daily Newspaper. Seoul.

4. HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY

Centre for East Asian Cultural Studies. A Short History of Korea. Tokyo: The Centre, 1964. 84 pages

Conroy, Francis Hilary. The Japanese Seizure of Korea, 1868-1910. Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 1960.
A well documented history and analysis of Japanese expansion on the Asian continent culminating in the seizure of Korea.

Dallet, Charles. Traditional Korea. Hew Haven: Human Relations Area Files, 1954.
A translation of an ethnographic introduction to the author's Histoire de l'Eglise de Coree written at the end of the 19th Century. The work is important since it was and is the only attempt at a complete ethnography of traditional Korea written in a Western language. Contains a section on religious practices and beliefs.--s.
Dallet's history is the most voluminous work of its kind and has been basic material in the study of Catholicism in Korea. Its introduction provides a good source from which one may draw better understanding of the state of Korean society and culture up to the middle of the 19th century.--h.

Eckel, Paul E. The Far East Since 1500. New York: Harcourt Brace, 1947.
Gives a generally accurate summary of 19th century Korea up to its annexation by Japan and includes some material on the period since.

Harrington, Fred Harvey. God, Mammon, and the Japanese: Dr. Horace M. Allen and Korean-American Relations, 1884-1905. Madison: University of Wisconsin Press, 1944. DS910 H299
An account of the American missionary, Horace M. Allen, who played a leading role in Korean court politics. Gives an excellent description of events in this period based on extensive use of Allen's papers.

Hong, Yi-sup. The Politico-Economic Thought of Yak-yong Chong, the Summary. Seoul: Korean Research Center, 1959.
Also in Kang's Scientific Study of Education, pp. 173-82.

Hulbert, Homer B. The History of Korea. 2 vols. Seoul: The Methodist Publishing House, 1905.
Republished in 1962 both from Hillary House, New York and Routledge, London. Ed. by Clarence Norwood Weems.

Published over half a century ago, this is still the most detailed history of Korea in English. Covers the period from the origins to 1904. Based on Korean histories. The most detailed account of Korean relations with China and Japan in the context of a detailed general history.--s.

It suggests a fundamental frame for studying the history of Korea. Thus the understanding of Korea's history in Europe as well as America depends much on the works by Hulbert.--h.

McCune, Shannon. Korea's Heritage: A Regional and Social Geography. Rutland, Vermont and Tokyo: Charles E. Tuttle, 1956.

Probably the best geographical survey in English.. The first half of the book is devoted to historical, social, and economic developments and patterns. The second half is devoted to a physical geography of Korea by regions. With many excellent photographs.--s.

Reischauer, Edwin O. and Fairbank, John K. East Asia, the Great Tradition. A History of East Asian Civilization, Vol I. Boston: Houghton Mifflin 1960. Chapter X, pp. 394-449.

This offers the best modern summary of the history of Korea down to the middle of the 19th century. Volume II of this two volume text will continue the treatment to modern times. An excellent general survey of traditional Korean history that lays proper emphasis on Korean-Chinese and Japanese relations.

Eckhardt, Andreas. A History of Korean Art. Tr. from the German by J. M. Kindersley. London: Goldston, 1929.

Still the best and most detailed history of Korean art available in Western languages. Covers all art forms and has numerous illustrations.--s.

/He/ tried to see Korean art historically and comprehensively in his Geschicte der Koreanischen Kunst, under the heads of architecture, painting, and ceramics...Eckhardt could not help speaking highly of Korean art in the Orient as harmoniously natural and plain, and stove to find the Korean's superior artistic susceptibility, while trying hard to grasp their feelings. Thus the book has been matchless in the field. Unfair and blindly criticism was corrected by Eckhardt.--h.

Yang, Key P. and Henderson, Gregory. "An Outline History of Korean Confusianism, Part I." Journal of Asian Studies, XVIII, 1 (1958), 81-101.

Treats the development and growth of Confucian thought to the end of the 19th century with emphasis on the Yi period (1392-1910).

_____. "An Outline History of Korean Confuciansim, Part II: The Schools of Yi Confucianism," Journal of Asian Studies, XVIII, 2 (1959), 259-76.

A description of the great variety of Confucian schools in the Yi period. Reflects the growing alienation of ideology from political reality in the later Yi period.

DS902 G743
A survey of Korean resources, geography, social organization, and economic and political development in the period of Japanese domination.--s.
He especially paid much attention to falsifications which appeared in the reports of the Japanese Government-General, and he made the picture of colonial Korea quite clear. The injustice and falsification of the Japanese and the resultant misunderstandings by the Westerners were corrected in his book.--h.
